More than 100 farmers were guests of the Bismarck Rotary club under whose auspices more than forty cars crowded with enthusiastic cow boosters left the Tribune corner at 7 A. M. Wednesday morning made the round of the famous New Salem Holstein breeders circuit—a co-operative effort of seventeen farmers who have proven that the pure bred stock is a paying venture.

The Bismarck caravan caught up with the Mandan tour under the direction of the Commercial club of that city at New Salem. Mounted on an International truck was a prize Holstein cow from Pleasant Grove farm the first stop of the trip. This cow is a member of the original herd that started the New Salem group of Holstein breeders on the road to prosperity.

It was an inspiring sight as the more than 100 cars bedecked with all kinds of banners entered New Salem. Over the cow on the truck was a great banner bearing these words:

Welcome to Our City

Cows Are Pictured.
Many of the enterprising merchants had painted life size pictures of Holstein cows upon their windows and one artist had labeled his production "the mortgage litter."

Mandan boosters had a band, a service car and a "Red Cross" car manned by physicians.

The Bismarck boosters under the direction of Hurl Finney president of the Bismarck Rotary, assisted by Jack Whitney Hal Dobler H. P. Goddard J. L. Bell and other Rotarians had a warter and each car had an appropriate slogan prepared by the Town Criers. One of them was "New Salem—You Tell 'Em."

What Was Learned.
The Burleigh county farmers responded readily to be guests of the Bismarck Rotary club and it was a profitable day spent on a demonstration of what can be done with good dairy stock in a country that has for many years given up the idea of the one crop—one pay day for the continuous revenue producing cattle.

Out of the seventeen breeders who have registered herds under the direction of the agricultural college only one has a mortgage on his place. Every farm is prosperous well kept and a paying venture every month in the year.

Most of them have electric plants, electric milkers, pit silos and every convenience to cut down the overhead cost of preparation. They are enthusiastic boosters for the Holstein variety, and would not go back to the old days of simply raising wheat and flax for any price.

One of the monuments of the farmer, who was too proud to put his hands under a cow, was pointed out to the members of the party. There is merely an old abandoned grove and a weary stretch of dilapidation. This told eloquently of the failure of the man who wouldn't put his hands under a cow.

Tour Well Organized.
The tour was well organized from every standpoint. Max Morgan county agent of Morton had worked up the junket to demonstrate the value of dairy farms. He turned the leadership over to Prof. Shepperd of the North Dakota Agricultural college who did so much in getting the circuit started. A number of supervisors and professors from the A. C. were on the tour and gave valuable assistance in explaining to the farmers the merits of the various animals. Programs were placed in their hands giving in detail the records of the animals at the various stations and showing the net profit to the farmer from each animal.

At President's Farm.
The first stop was at Pleasant Grove farm on the edge of New Salem. John Christiansen the owner was spoken of as the patriarch of the circuit. He came to that section in 1882 when the Indians roamed the prairie. In giving his experience to a crowd of 800 or more that gathered in a grove about his farm he said that he had tried the single crop plan and for several years struggled with debt and unfavorable conditions until a few got together and decided to promote the breeding of registered Holstein-Friesian cattle.

He told how under the single crop plan it took him several years to pay off a mortgage of $400 and then figures were given to show the profits of a year from his fine herd of Holsteins. The facts sunk deep into the many farmers who had just come from their sun-burned fields and were eager to hear what could be done to assure a constant and reasonably sure revenue producer.

What Burleigh Can Do.
Burleigh county it was stated by the boosters from this section can build up the same kind of a herd. The topography of this section is the same as that around New Salem and lends itself better to cattle raising and milk production than flax raising.

DEFENSE SEEKS TO CAST DOUBT ON BURNS STORY

Attacks Testimony as to Throwing World Series in Case in Chicago

ATTORNEY GROWS ANGRY

Chicago, July 21.—The defense of the baseball trial today began what was announced as an attempt through cross-examination to impeach Bill Burns the state's star witness for perjury and early in the day apparently had forced Burns to contradict point of his testimony of how gamblers corrupted the White Sox players to throw the 1919 world series.

Attorney Thomas H. Nash of the defense asked Burns if he had testified on direct examination that he met Rube Weaver and Fesch in a Cincinnati hotel the morning of the day before the first game of the series.

"Yes," answered Burns.

Don't you know those players were out at Redland field practicing at that time?" shouted Nash.

Don't you know most of the players went to the races that afternoon and weren't at the hotel?" Nash shouted.

I saw them at the hotel," said Burns.

Did Not Go To Room.
Nash got Burns to admit he did not go to room 708 of the Sinton hotel the night after the first game and did not see the players that night.

Mr. Nash then read from the record of Burns' testimony of yesterday that he went to room 708 that night, and saw all the indicted players except Joe Jackson.

"PERFECT LOVE FORGIVES"

So New Jersey Preacher Surrenders Wife to Another Man
And Wishes Her Well

MRS. CLARK DURYEA, WIFE OF THE MONTICELLO, N. J. PASTOR, AND (INSET) EARL VERNON, THE MAN SHE JOINED WITH

BY ALICE ROHL.
Monticello, N. J., July 21.—Perfect love understands and forgives. I do not condone my wife's sin, but I wish her well.

The speaker was Clark Duryea, pastor of the Holiness Gospel Mission here. The wife was Mrs. Duryea, who a few days ago took the two Duryea children and eloped with Earl Vernon, a 2-year-old neighbor.

I talked with Duryea at a revival meeting he was holding at Monticello, N. J. Voices of his followers were lifted behind him in prayer and exhortation as he talked.

The couple is doomed to more ink some bonds than my I could impose, said the pastor. He told a pathetic figure against the sustaining back around of his praying followers.

Two Opinions.
Members of the mission say the Duryea's action characterizes him as a great forgiving spirit. Others say the former New York department store clerk, now leader of the Holiness Brotherhood is just a weak sick man whose powers of resistance have been numbed by physical and mental suffering.

"My wife didn't have any more in perfect love," said Duryea. "She didn't care for spiritual but for material things."

I was sick and since my little fund of money disappeared—spent on an operation for her last year—she has been nervous and her nervousness took the form it seems of intolerance of me.

She told me she wanted to be rid of me. I answered that my religion did not permit of divorce.

Because I could not prevent their going people said I was a fool. How could I prevent them?

My aunt supported me after I became unable to work. But I quit when she heard about this. Now I am sustained by the Spirit alone. I get no pay here.

I have nothing to do with her support here if she will take it, but I feel she is leaving me for another man's love.

Such spirituality takes me to the flowers. When his wife joined him he replied Amen.

Prays for Children.
It's losing the children that hurts so, Duryea says. "All I can do is pray for them as I do for forgiveness for my wife."

And Mrs. Vernon?

At 5 she has met the great disillusion by bravely endeavoring to appear independent and crisp in conversation but she wept when she talked to me.

Only the day before Earl had promised me that he would never so. Mrs. Duryea's words seemed to be prophetic with me and now that it has happened I only hope that he will be happy with her. I am sorry that he couldn't love me, but there is no hurt in my heart.

On Legal Business.
Earl McCurdy, city attorney, with a letter from him in connection with the action brought by federal officials against Raymond J. Klingler for violation of the Mann act. Klingler was arrested in this city.

FACTS FOR THE CITY TAXPAYERS

Members of the school board, according to sentiment expressed at the annual meeting, believe they can reduce expenses without impairing the efficiency of the schools. With a fixed increase of $12,000 in teachers' salaries due to a new state law, under which the board has no option, it is announced that under present plans the board will save the $12,000 in curtailment of other expenses and not increase the budget. This is a good beginning. It represents a determination to cut running expenses $12,000. Perhaps careful consideration will show that expenditures can be cut more than that.

The board announces there will be no building program this year and repairs will be limited. The example of the city school board on which there is one member who is a member of the city commission, and whose treasurer is a city commissioner is a good example. It should be followed by the taxpayers who are on the question of the bond issue on July 26. The school board can save $12,000 why cannot the city save a fire truck? It is wise for the limit its repairs and building program to the economy why is it wise for the city to follow the same course?

The Tribune believes the school board's announced intention is a commendable one. It has had the intention to be commended. It commends the decision of the board to the consideration of the taxpayers of the city.

NEGRO SHOTS TWO IN BATTLE IN CASSELTON

William Small Caught By Posse and Landed in Jail After Running Fight
LITTLE GIRL IS SHOT
Negro Ordered Off Train By Detective Runs Amuck in the City

Fargo, July 21.—William Small, negro, is in the Cass county jail with two bullet wounds. Emil Priewe, Casselton business man has a dangerous bullet wound in the side, and a ten-year-old Casselton girl has a bullet wound in the wrist, following a battle between the negro and Casselton officers and residents today.

According to Mayor W. J. Bell, of Casselton, Small, when ordered off a Great Northern railroad train at Casselton this morning by a railroad policeman, fired six shots at the policeman and fled. He commandeered an automobile, telling the driver to "drive on," the mayor said, but the latter killed the engine. The negro then shot the young daughter of Emil Priewe who called to him from an upper room of the Priewe home, she being wounded in the wrist, and fired on and wounded Mr. Priewe when the latter shot at him.

The fugitive escaped, reaching a farm three miles south of Casselton and was captured after being slightly wounded.

FORDNEY TARIFF BILL MAY REACH PASSAGE TODAY

End of Tariff Fight in House is Due with Republicans in Majority

Washington, July 21.—Compensation duties on textiles manufactured from long staple cotton were denied by the house today in line with action yesterday in refusing compensatory duties on leather products. The vote of 122 to 70 represented a coalition of Republicans, with Democrats to defeat the proposition.

The end of the tariff fight in the house was due today. A vote on the Fordney bill was scheduled for late in the day with passage regarded as assured in view of the heavy Republican majority which thus far has supported the measure as a whole. There were prospects of a bitter fight however.

DRIVERS TOO CAREFUL, NEW PLAINT MADE

Lead S. D. July 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—A new complaint is being developed in the Black Hills district. While the roads throughout the Hills district are excellent mountain thoroughfares wide, well surfaced and with few steep grades, certain motorists refuse to venture from the center of the highway for fear of getting too near the edge and as a result several near serious accidents have occurred. Four accidents said to have been caused by this criminal carelessness were recently reported in the vicinity of this city in one day.

BRITISH DENIAL OF MORE TROOPS SHOCKS FRENCH

Anglo-French Relations Strained Over Upper Silesian Question

FRANCE SEES A DANGER

Decides to Send Reinforcements To Protect Troops Already in Territory

Paris, July 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—France it was declared in official circles today will send reinforcements to Upper Silesia whether Great Britain joins or not in the reinforcement movement suggested by France. The French move will be it is declared to insure the safety of 10,000 French soldiers already on the ground.

Premier Briand sent a note yesterday in reply to the British note on the Silesian issue expressing lack of conviction that the supreme council could serve any useful purpose by convening, before measures are taken to assure aid and provide for the security of allied troops now in Upper Silesia. The British note asks that the council convene. News received here today from Oppeln was far from reassuring. The attitude of the German press is interpreted by the French dispatches as increasingly provocative.

Recognizes Danger.
France it is declared recognizes that danger threatens from the side of the Poles as well as from the German side. It doubly necessary in the French view to increase the allied troops.

French official circles received a distinct shock from the British government reply to the French suggestion for reinforcements and in some quarters today Anglo-French relations are described as critical. The French government is said to have been unprepared for the severity and unyielding tone that this morning's newspapers indicate characterizes the British communication.

Sharp Differences of Opinion On The Official Report

London, July 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The basis for a conference to attempt a settlement of the Irish question has not yet been found, it was announced in the official communique issued after a conference today between Eamonn DeValera and Premier Lloyd George, who have been conferring with the object of finding such a basis.

Mr. DeValera and his colleagues, adds the communique will return to Dublin tomorrow and will meet with Mr. Lloyd George after further discussions with his followers there.

There was some argument between the Irish delegation and the English premier as to the text of the communique issued to the press. The Irish delegation submitted the first draft of the communique to which Mr. Lloyd George withheld his assent. His substitute failed to meet approval of the Irish representatives and a lengthy discussion ensued before a draft mutually satisfactory was drawn.

REVIEWS TRIP OVER CUSTER'S BATTLEFIELD

F. L. Anders, Who Was Born
At Old Fort Lincoln, Visits
Montana Fields

COULD TRACE POSITIONS

An interesting trip over the Custer battlefield was taken by F. L. Anders, Fargo engineer, who was in Bismarck yesterday returning from a long automobile journey through the west. Mr. Anders is a student of the history of the Custer massacre, having a particular interest in it because he was born in old Fort Abraham Lincoln, on the west bank of the river south of Mandan, in 1875 when General Custer was in command of the post. This year also is the 50th anniversary of the first survey of the Northern Pacific railroad line to the mouth of Glendive creek, and Mr. Anders' father was a member of the party.

Fully 15,000 people were on the battlefield of the Little Big Horn June 25 when the massacre was reproduced, Mr. Anders said. Thousands of Crow and northern Shoshone Indians were present. He also was at the unveiling of the Custer monument at Hardin. Mrs. Custer was represented by a cousin, Mr. Case, of St. Louis. There were 18 survivors of the Seventh cavalry who were with Reno, among them being Peter Thompson, of Troop D, who was presented with a congressional medal of honor for volunteering to go after water for the wounded, he himself being wounded.

Follows Old Trail

Mr. Anders spent four days following the trail of Custer's men from the mouth of the Rosebud. He ended the tour on Custer's old camp ground. The speedometer on Mr. Anders' car registered a mileage almost exactly the same as that given in Gen. Godfrey's book on the battle. Mr. Anders also visited Reno's battleground.

Markers have been placed on spots where some of the heroes of the battle are supposed to have fallen. They do not coincide in many instances with the spots named by General Godfrey, Mr. Anders said, and pointed out as an instance that the Kough marker is about 900 feet from location assigned to the position where he fell. There are no markers on the ridge assigned by General Godfrey as the position of Smith's troops. The main line of defense, from a military standpoint, did not seem to have been occupied, Mr. Anders said, except insofar as Calhoun's troop was concerned. All others seemed to have fallen into positions in ravines or similar places that were similarly disadvantageous for proper defense, he said.

The marker showing where Sergeant Butler fell is about 600 feet from the position assigned as the place of his death by Godfrey. This also was true as regards the marker to Lieut. Hodgson. The marker showing the place of death of Charles Reynolds, the scout, is a five-inch pipe in an alfalfa field, he said.

Can Trace Position

Reno's position of defense can be easily traced, Mr. Anders said, by the trenches which still exist. It was the only place in the vicinity that could be selected for the purpose, taking into consideration the fact that the command was a cavalry command, Mr. Anders said. One of the questions arising from the battle is whether or not Custer tried to ford a creek, he said, and added that there is no doubt but that the Godfrey account, given by Indians, is correct, and that neither Custer or his command was nearer the Ford than the ridge. Sergt. Butler, who was killed, was the only one within a half mile of it, Anders said.

Many absurd and unusual stories were heard about the famous Indian fight of 1876, Mr. Anders said, indicating a lack of study. Great interest is felt by people in the vicinity in the history of the battle, he added.

NONPARTISANS WORK TO GET RECALL, CLAIM

Independent Headquarters Reports That Many Are Carrying Petitions

Fargo, July 20.—Nonpartisans are not only signing the recall petitions but in many localities they are working hard to get signers, according to reports from independent field workers in various parts of the state, says an independent announcement.

Wm. Schull, of Rolla, chairman of the county campaign committee, wrote the independent state headquarters to the effect that "it seems that the whole Nonpartisan League are camping in Rolette county this week."

One kick is registered from the field and that deals with the slowness with which some of the local independents went to work on the first round-up of petitions. It seems, it was said at the headquarters last night, that in some strong League districts the local workers think it useless to get after signatures, being of the opinion that leaguers will not sign. In every instance where this condition prevails, success has been reported, however, when the start finally was made, the announcement says.

"I believe that I have the county well organized and working on the petitions now. I have been in touch."

WALL STREET EXPECTS ROADS TO START BOOM

BY ALBERT APPLE.

Wall street now inclines to the belief that business revival, when it starts, will begin with heavy buying of equipment and supplies by the railroads.

Herbert Hoover points out that "the railroads normally consume 20 per cent of all materials and employ, directly or indirectly, 20 per cent of all labor in the United States."

That is a potential buying power big enough to put the whole country out of depression.

Hence Wall Street considers it very important that the railroads lately are making a much better financial showing.

Idle freight cars have been reduced to 373,791, says latest reports of American Railway Association. Three months ago there were 507,274 idle cars.

In the week ended June 25, latest reported, number of cars loaded with revenue-producing freight on all American railroads was 775,061, against 845,084 cars same week 1919.

Many railroad repair shops are being re-opened.

either by phone or personal interview, with men in every township and village in the county and hope for good final results. I will be very glad to have headquarters keep me posted as to how they are responding and where the slack points are so that I can go after them.

"As it now stands I think we have about 2200 names sent in and I believe that we will get at least 500 more which will not be doing too badly."

Among the late reports at the state headquarters in one from near New England in Hettinger county which gave O'Connor six votes; the recall petitions got 32 signatures; a township in Steele where O'Connor received two votes has so far furnished eighteen names to the recall petitions and all the voters in the precinct have not been approached yet. A township in Dunn county where O'Connor got less than half a dozen votes the recall petitions show 37 signatures. In more than nine hundred signatures recorded at the headquarters last Saturday no rural precinct showed less signatures than the number of votes for O'Connor last fall.

At the rate that signed petitions are being received at state headquarters daily it is believed that the twenty thousand signatures that were reported on recall petitions that were held back when the laws petitions were sent in will be in state headquarters before the end of this month. This, together with the 45,681 signatures that were sent in previously, makes a total of 65,000, over 900 were received in the mails yesterday.

PLAN PAYMENT OF BONUS CASH WITHIN 1 YEAR

South Dakota Board Head Says Some Erroneous Reports Have Gone Forth

NEEDS TIME TO ORGANIZE

Pierre S. D. July 21.—South Dakota's soldiers bonus money cannot under any possible circumstance be entirely paid before March 1st under the plan adopted by the compensation board according to Fred Ray of Yankton executive head of the board who has been here since Monday meeting with other members of the board.

The general impression that we would be making payments within 30 days is wrong. Mr. Ray declared I did in an interview with a newspaper reporter state that the board's organization would be functioning at its full capacity within 30 days, but it will be at least three months before the bonds are sold and the money becomes available, and perhaps much longer.

Mr. Ray recited one instance he had encountered where this misunderstanding was already working a hardship. An ex-service man contemplating marriage happened to read the item mentioned in a newspaper regarding payments in 30 days. Knowing he was entitled to a certain amount in cash he had his local furniture dealer to sell him a bill of goods on the promise that the bonus money would be turned over to the dealer within 30 days.

Both were honest in their intentions, said Mr. Ray, but I fear the deal is going to have an unpleasant ending unless the dealer extends the time.

Selects Personnel.
The board at its meeting this week selected the personnel numbering 17 who will handle the office work fixed their salaries and started the enlarged force at their work. There will be five examiners under the direction of M. L. Williams of Rapid City through whose hands every application for a bonus will have to pass. This examining department will be capable of examining not more than 200 claims a day the board estimates or 1,200 claims a week. If this average is maintained, it will require more than 33 weeks of continuous work to examine the 40,000 applications which it is estimated will be filed by former-service men of the state.

Thus far the board has taken no definite action relative to the disposal of the bonus bonds. Specifications were discussed during the meeting here and the method of retirement of the bonds taken up with the state tax commission. The final draft of the specifications is expected to be completed within a week. Upon their completion they will be submitted to various bonding houses for bids. The securing of a ruling by the state aupreme court as to the legality of the issue will be left to it in said to the prospective purchasers of the bonds.

To File Soon.

Elton W. Stanley of Rapid City a member of the board discussing the department's program said that filing of the application blanks would start next week. Several counties have already completed their canvass and have delivered to the board their filled out blanks. These are being piled in the order of the arrival and will be filed accordingly. Among this group are included Lawrence, Jones and Hughes counties. It is hoped according to Mr. Stanley that the first 10,000 applications will have been examined and refilled ready to make payments on if the money is available, by October 1.

Department heads named by the board at the meeting and their monthly salaries a matter also left to the board are as follows:

Miss Faye Frick Yankton information and filing department $150. M. L. Williams Rapid City examination department $200. M. A. Sanford Parker Schumacher auditing department $175. The board fixed the minimum salaries of clerks and stenographers at $55 a month and the maximum at $125.

Former service men and women whose near relatives are World War veterans are being given preference in the selection of the clerical force.

The entire department from the board members down will be former service people declared Mr. Stanley.

Search For Brother Of Man Killed By Falling Wall

The body of John Lantry, the unfortunate man who was killed under the falling wall of the Shenlenn building Wednesday morning is being held at the Kennelly Undertaking Parlor pending the outcome of a search for his brother whose last known address according to a letter found in the dead man's effects was Milwaukee. Wires from the coroner to that place disclosed the fact that the brother had come from there and his present address is unknown.

The deceased was believed to have been a connection of T. H. Lantry, general manager of the Northern Pacific, but so far no answers have been received from inquiries made to him.

The inquest was held before Coroner J. J. Kennelly at three o'clock yesterday and the coroners jury in their expressed verdict exonerated the shattering owner of the building from all blame, stating that it was their belief that Lantry did not use all due precautions.

He was about 40 years of age and had resided in this section for at least ten or twelve years, his home in Mandan being at the Dakota hotel.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

PERFUME

Egyptians had wonderful perfumes. Scientists excavating there report they found a jar of scent in the tomb of a princess. When the jar was opened the fragrance of the scent was still strong, though it had been buried since about 2000 B. C.

Four thousand years! That's even most lasting than the fragrance of cabbage cooked in Bismarck boarding house kitchens on a hot day in July.

ARMISTICE

President Harding himself has suggested that it would be fine if the proposed international conference could convene on Armistice Day, November 11.

On Armistice Day, 1918, the allied and associated powers laid down the terms that stripped Germany and the Central Powers of danger as a military menace.

If on Armistice Day, 1921, these same powers take up the problem of minimizing military aggression amongst themselves, the day will be made doubly memorable.

HARD TIMES

The necessity of dealing with our economic problems on a world basis, and the impossibility of the United States prospering by itself alone, is strikingly stated by Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce.

"The hard times that knocked at every cottage door today," says Hoover, "came from Europe."

"No tariffs, no embargoes, no navies, no armies can ever defend us from these invasions."

"Our sole defense is the prosperity of our neighbors and our own commercial skill."

ALVIN YORK

Alvin York, the war's greatest hero, has the sympathy of thousands in his fight to save his mortgaged farm.

The story of his danger of being ousted was printed in The Tribune and other papers throughout the country.

And from all parts of the country, by hundreds, have come offers of aid.

In addition to the individual offers, Sunday schools in Kansas City have started a fund to meet the mortgage.

The world admires a game fighter. And more, it is always ready to help him.

AMBASSADORS

Of 25 picture shows advertised in the London Mail recently 24 were American productions.

Now Mary Pickford and Doug Fairbanks and Wally Reid and Marguerite Clark and Charlie Chaplin don't know a thing about international diplomacy, but nevertheless they are our envoys extraordinary, not in the Court of St. James, but direct to the people of England.

They are ambassadors of good will in a way that no ambassador to a mere court can possibly be. They are teaching English people to smile and cry with us and folks who smile and cry together over the same things are not likely to fight each other—though they may fight together.

MANAGER PLAN

More than 8000 citizens of Dayton, O., one of the first cities to adopt the city manager plan of government, have signed petitions for a referendum to abolish the city managership and the commission form.

Citizens of Dayton are displeased with the present form of government because of a recent rise in the gas rate.

After all, it is men and not forms that make governments good or bad. But no city has ever gone back on the city manager plan. Almost invariably it has eliminated politicians and brought good men into politics.

The Dayton movement will be watched with interest everywhere.

INCLUDES CHINA

The inclusion of China in President Harding's invitations to the disarmament conference is an indication of how important a part the discussion of the Pacific and Far Eastern questions is to play in the negotiations.

As the least militaristic of nations, China has but an academic interest in the question of disarmament.

But she has a vital interest in any decisions that are taken which directly or indirectly affect the future policies of America, Great Britain and Japan in the Pacific.

It would be folly to attempt to arrive at these decisions without giving China a chance to state her case.

That President Harding has not committed this folly is one of the good auguries for the success of the great venture he has undertaken.

DEFLATION

The money value of the total resources of the United States has shrunk about twenty-five billion dollars since the decline in post-war prices started, on the basis of an estimate by American delegates to the International Chamber of Commerce.

In other words, the deflation so far accomplished has just about equaled the total of Uncle Sam's national debt.

Now if some way could be found to deflate that debt we would really be getting back toward normal.

MARKSMANSHIP

"When the prodigal son returned they shot the fatted calf; when the disabled American soldier returned, they shot the bull."

Thus George H. Gillen, national commander of the National Disabled Soldiers' League, describes the treatment of 611,000 soldiers and sailors who received disabilities, in some degree, during the war.

In the nearly three years since the signing of the armistice, Congress has been shooting at soldier relief. But Congress is a poor marksman.

MORALS

Dr. W. Perrin, a bishop of the church of England, says: "The moral code today is more lax than it ever has been."

But is it? Or does it merely seem to be more lax because more and more stress is laid on its being lived up to?

In 1754 a father wrote to the Spectator of London, Eng., complaining of "the prevalent vulgarities of the ball-room."

The literature of every century in the past 400 years contains denunciations of fashions.

The age-old Bible itself is filled with counsel intended to correct unhappy marriages.

Maybe our times are bad—but not really the worst.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

SPEAKING HARSHLY

"I don't like to speak harshly to my little boy; I want him to love me," we heard a man say the other day. That's right; he oughtn't to speak harshly, and there isn't any need of it—unless in the early years he has failed to speak firmly. But that poor, benighted man was complaining to an outsider that his boy wouldn't mind him. And he thought he was being kind not to make him mind.

What a father like that forgets, of course, is that if the lad grows up regardless of the rights and comforts of others the world will speak to him harshly, whether in word or in that far more hurtful way of leaving him alone. The men who have not been loved by their children because they punished them have been so few that no man with a sense of justice needs to fear such a fate. But it is a common experience to hear a man say: "When my dad got after me you can be sure I had it coming. I wonder he didn't do it oftener."

Harshness? Of course not, but that begs the question. When a parent is harsh, it is usually he has lost his temper a little, has not the patience to speak firmly and make it clear that he is insisting on something that is right and ought to be done. It is no easy thing to weigh the shades of conduct and do just what is best with children, but it is no hard thing to be just. And there is no kindness in an easy-going way which leaves a child to find out for himself how strictly the world will judge him.—Milwaukee Journal.

LONGEVITY AND HUSBANDS

Mrs. Maria E. Wilson, of Pittsburgh, has just celebrated her one hundred and second birthday. She declares that she is the oldest woman in Pittsburgh because her conscience never troubled her and because she married but once. One husband in a lifetime is enough for one woman, says Mrs. Wilson.

She was, however, left a widow at twenty-six, which was over seventy-five years ago. Husbands at that time were not nearly so useful and were much more self-assertive and wearing than they are today. At that time they insisted more on having their way. But they were tolerated by the more purposeful, persistent and practical sex because they were needed to help fill the family market basket. But the necessity for keeping a husband merely for material reasons is going by; women now being tempted with an ever-increasing assortment of ways of earning livings for themselves. That is why one may imagine that masculine foolishness is less endured than formerly, and consequently there is as large a husband turning over as there is.

We don't know whether or not Mrs. Wilson is a philosopher and a humorist; if she is, and carries in mind the reel of the human comedy that has unrolled before her since she was a bride in her teens, she must often smile inwardly.—New York Tribune.

MRS. STOKES WINS HER CHILDREN; BATTLES TO CLEAR HER NAME

MRS. HELEN ELWOOD STOKES, THE CHILDREN SHE HAS WON, JIMMIE, 5, AND HELEN, 4, AND (INSET) W. E. D. STOKES.

BY E. M. THIERRY

New York, July 20.—Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes' fight for her children is over.

She has won. And they have been pledged a rich heritage by their millionaire father.

Whether she will clear her name of the legal mud thrown by W. E. D. Stokes in one of New York's two most sensational divorce cases—paralleling the Stillman case—is something an impending court decision will determine.

If she wins, she will get a separation and a large share of her husband's wealth. If Stokes wins, he will get his divorce—but by his own eleventh-hour surrender, he virtually conceded defeat in a losing fight.

Stokes' surrender—so it is regarded by Mrs. Stokes and her attorneys—came as an unexpected anti-climax to a long series of spectacular chapters of marital struggles and legal battles extending over two years.

Stokes, known from coast to coast as clubman, hotel proprietor and millionaire involved in several dramas, domestic and otherwise, offered voluntarily to release the two children into the custody of their grandmother—the mother of the wife he attacked in court.

Decision To Write Last Chapter

His legal brief, together with those of Mrs. Stokes' lawyers in his suit for divorce and her counter-suit for separation, are now in the hands of Supreme Court Justice Finch. His decision, expected soon, will write the last chapter to a bitter family battle.

Spectators of the divorce drama see Stokes' own confession of defeat in this remarkable passage of his brief:

"If in the judgment of the court it seems wise, the plaintiff would gladly consent that the custody of the children should be awarded to the grandmother during their tender years realizing that thereby the mother will have intimate and probably daily communication with them, as they will occupy the same home."

"In that event, the father begs that he may be allowed such privileges of visitation as will enable him to keep in touch with the hearts of his children and care for their physical and mental welfare."

"By feeling that they still, in a sense, belong to him, he will provide liberally for them after his death."

How Attorneys Construe Settlement

"Please notice that Mr. Stokes does not 'agree' to such disposition of the children," said Herbert C. Smith, one of his attorneys. "I mean to say, this is not a 'settlement.' Mr. Stokes suggests that such disposition may be the judgment of the court."

To which qualifications Martin W. Littleton, attorney for Mrs. Stokes, just smiles. To Mrs. Stokes it spells victory.

To little Jimmy Stokes, aged 5, and Helen Muriel Stokes, aged 4, it means a home with their mother and grandmother, and their rightful share of their rich father's fortune.

Observers see in Stokes' surrender a decision not to enter court again in legal warfare with femininity.

Mylos A. Walsh, associated with Attorney Littleton, sees victory for Mrs. Stokes, saying:

"It seems to me that this whole action has been brought to deprive Mrs. Stokes of her rightful share in the Stokes millions. He has tried to besmirch the name of his wife, yet is willing to leave his children in her custody—for that is what it would mean to have them with their grandmother."

No matter what the decision is, Stokes will probably have to pay large sums, if not in alimony certainly for the support of the children. His first wife, divorced in 1900, was granted alimony of $1000 a week.

Stokes and Helen Elwood of Denver were married Feb. 11, 1911, when he was 62 and she 22. Marital litigation began in 1919. The trial period started last March, the children some time previously having been awarded Mrs. Stokes by Judge Ben Lindsay of Denver.

Numerous Co-Respondents Named

of the process, claims that it will reduce the price of beer to far below pre-war levels.

The new beer, or "near beer," as the case may be, is produced entirely without the aid of malt. A common word when goes by the dignified scientific name of "asparagillus," is the "bug" that does the trick.

The mould presents a fluffy white appearance just like those often discovered in the family jam. It looks powerless, clinging with countless others to the side of a flask.

But one small bottle of these "bugs" can ferment 100 litres of brew.

This brew is made from a mixture of one part of grain to three parts of water, boiled together, then cooled. The "bugs" are the only other ingredient than necessary. The resulting beer, according to the professor, tastes just exactly like one brewed with malt.

Remarkable Remarks

Germany is in far better condition than the other countries of Central Europe.—A. S. Burleson, former postmaster general.

Fathers who work hard are better progenitors than those who take it easy.—Casper I. Redfield, Chicago heredity expert.

Medical Beer is not recognized by the medical profession.—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel, Anti-Saloon League.

Business is available to the man who will trade his wishbone for a back bone and go out and get it.—Josiah Kirby, Cleveland real estate man.

Governmental economy is vitally necessary to bring business back to something like normal.—Senator Atlee Pomerene, Ohio.

Well, sir, when Fleet Fox grabbed Chris Crow in the fog, thinking that it was Biddy Bantam, you'd have thought that all the noise in the world was let loose. Chris was like most bullies, an awful frailty-calf, and he shrieked and screamed and squawked and called until even Mr. Moon heard him.

Cutie Cottontail over in the sassa-patch garden nibbling lettuce and sweet juicy pea leaves just sprouted, picked up his ears, and his feet, and scouted.

Biddy Bantam, who had just located her haystack that very minute, gazed into it head first without a backward look.

THOUGHTFUL CHILD

Even the very little child should be taught by his mother to be careful of his clothing, careful in putting it away at night and in saving it from tears and unnecessary soiling.

Little folks should be taught to hang up their own clothing when it is removed at night, and to hang up the towels and wash cloths after using them.

They should also be taught to use a tooth brush and comb when very young. This saves a great deal of effort and trouble in later years.

DOINGS OF THE DUFFS

YOUR FAMILY WILL LIKE JELLIED EGGS TRY 'EM
By Sister Mary
In place of meat on a hot summer night try jellied eggs. There is a lot of nourishment in the dish and it must be prepared in the morning. By preparing the dish in the morning the cook finds it possible to spend a long afternoon on the porch and finally get dinner in a fairly comfortable kitchen.

Jellied Eggs
Four-lean beef 2 quarts cold water 2 teaspoons salt 1 onion 2 sprigs parsley 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 table spoon granulated gelatine or hard boiled eggs.
Cut any meat from veal bone. Cut beef in small pieces. The beef should be a cheap cut from the neck. Put meat, bone, water salt pepper onion and parsley in soup kettle and bring very slowly to the boiling point. Skim off any scum as it rises. Simmer four or five hours. Strain through double thickness of cheese cloth. This makes a white stock that may be kept on hand. Let the stock cool and skim off any fat. Reheat to boiling point and add gelatine which has been softened in 1-4 cup cold water. Put the hold in a pan of cold water and cover the bottom with the jelly. When beginning to set add a layer of eggs. Cut in slices. Add another layer jelly and continue until all is used. Let each layer of jelly set partially before adding another layer of eggs. Let stand in the refrigerator for several hours before serving. Individual molds may be made instead of one large mold. This perhaps sounds like a long drawn out procedure but it is not and with eggs cheaper there is not a more economical or attractive dish to serve one's family.

Stuffed Eggs
Hard boiled eggs melted butter-sugar, salt mustard vinegar.
Put eggs on to cook in boiling water. Reduce heat and simmer for twenty minutes. Remove from water and plunge into cold water. Peel and shell. Cut in halves and remove yolks. Mash yolks smooth with a silver fork. To four egg yolks add 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon sugar, 1-8 teaspoon mustard and pepper, 2 tablespoons melted butter and vinegar to make moist. Fill the whites and let stand on ice an hour before serving.

THE THOUGHT-LESS GIRL
By Ruth Agnes Abeling
She was a timid looking little person a bit uncertain about everything. It was her first long trip by boat, and then there was to be such a thrilling ride. She couldn't help being nervous. But she smiled a queer thin lipped little smile which would all most have made one sorry for her, it she hadn't been so glad for her. Her skirt was full-to the top. Probably she had been saving the suit as 'best for years'. The jacket was too tight and the sleeves were a little queer. It wasn't a 1921 version nor was it even a 1920. But it was brushed and brushed so well and put on with such care and precision. The little hand bag she carried—for the past 10 years it must have been the companion of her important trips. It swung from a brass-rimmed handle and its shiny sides rounded out unscratched. She smiled confidently at every one and finally when the tall young woman sat down beside her she told her about her trip. She was going to see her daughter. Oh a bright lively daughter, she told of the little woman was so proud of her. Of course the daughter was to be there to meet her. She hadn't seen her for two years—because the daughter had been to see to go home. Finally the boat docked. The quavering smile broadened. The happy light in her eyes shone bright and as she walked down the plank her eyes searched the crowd which waited.

At the foot of the plank she stood for a minute looking around. There was no one there to meet her, no strong young hand to take the shiny little bag, no gay young person to push through the crowds ahead of her. So the little woman sought the corner of a bench and sat down. A look half disappointment half anxiety took the place of the smile while she watched for the face she knew among the many passing by.

Finally a young woman detached herself from the crowd. The little old woman started up tremulously. There was a preoccupied greeting and a hasty excuse for being late. And that was all so far as the thoughtless daughter was concerned.

Your Dressing Table
Do You Like To Linger?
If your dressing table isn't a restful refreshing inspiring place it isn't serving the purpose that it should. There is a certain mental poise and a feeling of well-being that lingers all through the day which begins with 30 minutes spent at a well appointed dressing table. The wise woman will have as few things on the top of the table as possible. She will use only those things which she uses constantly. The remainder of her toilet articles will be housed in a smart little folding table cabinet which stands on four legs quite high from the floor. An exceedingly effective arrangement for the woman who loves the distinctive is the black enamel topped table over which a long mirror is hung. A source of interesting design on either side of the mirror adds much to the charm of the place. With a black enamel top black bottles for cologne, aftershave and so on will harmonize and can be made quite easily by simply coating them in black sealing wax. If a few artificial flowers are desired and surely they should to the beauty of the arrangement old blue would be the tint to use in summer and yellow or burnt orange in winter.

125 BURLEIGH FARMERS VISIT NEW SALEM FARMS
After hearing of the early struggles of John Christensen and seeing on his sides in modern buildings, and silos the evidences of his prosperity which the cow and industry had handed for him the party lined up for a panoramic picture. One of the concrete results of the Burleigh county tour was the purchase of some of the high grade stock by farmers of this section who were greatly impressed with the results. The Rotary club of Bismarck was congratulated by the members of the New Salem circuit for bringing 125 farmers as its guests. It is the fore runner of a closer union both business and social between the country and city dweller of Burleigh. Other good results have been gained by the mutual benefit of the farmers and their brother business men in the city.

Results Not Wind
There was no great deal of talking on the trip. The visitors were kept busy noting results, tangible proof of what can be done through industry. New Salem is the center of a thirty county community. Most of her farmers are of German descent with an intermingling of Russian farmers. It has 711 people all of whom are boosters for the Holstein circuit.

Settled In 1883
Many of the farmers settled here in 1883. They started as most home steads. Today many of the cows from 120 to 150 acres of land worth $49 an acre with wonderful herds that work for them every month of the year. The live in modern homes most of them lighted by electricity. Their barns and buildings are in excellent condition—they are the type of the reach of any ambitious farmer. The herds have been developed on the long horned cow that was first driven from North Dakota as a prize prize to the purchase of land and grade herds today. This kind of industry and foresight has given New Salem the title of the Cream City of North Dakota.

Keeps Boys on Farm
Another reason for the success of the trip is that the cow helps to keep the boys on the farm. The boys of the circuit shows that in every instance but one the originator of his trip is a young man who has a son, daughter and a son-in-law.

This John Christensen farm was of interest because through the years a considerable surplus of milk has been produced. It is not only a good business but a good one for the community which it represents, which is why the New Salem circuit is so successful.

After a week in the city of New Salem, the circuit returned to the country. The circuit was a success in every way. It was a good one for the community which it represents, which is why the New Salem circuit is so successful.

CHAUMOOGRA TREE TO BE PLANTED IN UNITED STATES
Washington July 21. Introduction in the United States of the chaumogra tree, a valuable medicinal supply of the oil for the treatment of leprosy, planned as a result of a trip through Sumatra and Assam by Prof. L. J. Rolfs, formerly of the University of Hawaii. Prof. Rolfs has just returned to Washington after an extensive exploration into the jungle for the Department of Agriculture. He brought back with him several specimens of the tree, the seeds of which have been sent to various experimental stations of the department in Florida, Maryland, and California for germination. Within eight years, it is believed enough will be produced to supply the demand for the oil. With the possible exception of a small number of trees, the first trial planting was made in the Philippines where he studied the natives' uses of the tree. The tree has been found to grow in the mountains of the Philippines, and its seeds are said to be the most valuable of the oil. The tree is a small tree, about 10 feet high, with a thick, woody trunk. The leaves are small, oval, and dark green. The fruit is a small, round, red berry. The oil is extracted from the seeds and is used in the treatment of leprosy. It is also used in the treatment of other skin diseases, and is a valuable ingredient in many of the medicines used in the Philippines. The tree is native to the mountains of the Philippines, and is found in the forests of the highlands. It is a very hardy tree, and is able to grow in a wide range of soil conditions. It is also a very fast growing tree, and is able to produce a large quantity of oil in a short period of time. The introduction of the tree to the United States is a very important step in the treatment of leprosy, and is a great benefit to the people of the Philippines.
